DISPATCHES FROM THE WAR OFFICE.

FIRST DISPATCH.

Gen. Grant Successful—Lee Reported to be Retiring—Gen. Sherman Advancing—Tunnel Hill Occupied.

To Gen. John A. Dix, New-York:

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8—9 A. M.

We have no official reports from the front, but the Medical Director has notified the Surgeon-General that our wounded were being sent to Washington, and will number from six to eight thousand.

The Chief Quartermaster of the Army of the Potomac has made requisition for seven days' grain, and for railroad construction trains, and states the enemy is reported to be retiring.

This indicates Gen. GRANT's advance, and affords an inference of material success on our part.

The enemy's strength has always been most felt in his first blows, and their having failed, and our forces not only having maintained their ground, but preparing to advance, lead to the hope of full and complete success, for when either party fails, disorganization by straggling and desertion commences, and the enemy's loss in killed and wounded must weaken him more than we are weakened.

Nothing later than my last night's dispatch has been received from Gen. BUTLER.

A dispatch from Gen. SHERMAN, dated at 5 o'clock P. M. yesterday, states that Gen. THOMAS had occupied Tunnel Hill, where he expected a battle, and that the enemy had taken position at Buzzard Roost Pass, north of Dalton. Skirmishing had taken place, but no real fighting yet.

Nothing later from Gen. BANKS.

You may give such publicity to the information transmitted as you deem proper.

It is designed to give accurate official statements of what is known to the department in this great crisis, and to withhold nothing from the public.

EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

SECOND DISPATCH.

No Fighting on Saturday—The Wounded at Rappahannock Station—Severe Fighting by Gen. Butler's Army—The Richmond and Petersburgh Railroad Destroyed.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8—5 P. M.

Major-Gen. John A. Dix, New-York:

We are yet without any official dispatches from the Army of the Potomac, except those referred to this morning from the Medical Director and Chief Quartermaster, and nothing additional has been received by the department from any other source. It is believed that no fighting took place yesterday.

A part of the wounded arrived in ambulances this morning at Rappahannock Station, and are on the way in by railroad. The department will probably receive dispatches by that train, which will arrive to-night.

A dispatch from Gen. BUTLER, just received, and which left him yesterday, states that a demonstration had been made by his forces on the railroad between Petersburgh and Richmond, and had succeeded in destroying a portion of it, so as to break the connection; that there had been some severe fighting, but that he had succeeded. He heard from a rebel deserter that HUNTER was dangerously wounded PICKETT also, and JONES and JENKINS were killed. Nothing has been heard from Gen. SHERMAN.

EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE N. Y. TIMES

FRIDAY'S BATTLE.

FIRST DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8, 1864.

The latest news from the army received here is up to seven o'clock yesterday evening, at which time GRANT fully maintained his position. The fighting on Thursday and Friday was very severe, with skirmishing only on Saturday. LEE's first onset was made upon our left, but failing he then fell upon our centre and finally upon our right, where the hardest contest took place. Here the rebels charged upon our lines twice, but were repulsed each time with severe loss. HANCOCK's corps charged back twice, and at one time entered that portion of the enemy's entrenchments commanded by A. P. HILL, but were at length compelled to fall back. SEYMOUR's division of HANCOCK's corps was badly cut. Gens. WADSWORTH and BARTLETT were badly wounded, the former having been knocked off his horse by a spent minie ball. The rebels were reported retreating yesterday morning. The number of wounded is reported at about ten thousand; the killed at two thousand. The loss of the enemy exceeds this. He left his dead and disabled on the field, in our hands. The Ambulance Corps, with its admirable organization, is working up to its full capacity, carrying the wounded to Rappahannock Station. Sixteen trains of cars, dispatched from Alexandria to-day, will receive them. It is expected that they will return, with their bruised and mangled freight, about daylight. Several car-loads of ice were also sent down for the comfort of the wounded. The Sanitary and Christian Commissions are on the field, with a full force of assistants, and with plentiful supplies of everything necessary for the wounded. The Government has hospital accommodations here for thirty thousand, which will probably meet all demands.

SECOND DISPATCH.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8—Midnight.

Your special correspondent, writing from headquarters at Wilderness Tavern, Friday evening, May 6, gives the following intelligence of the great battle on Friday:

The day has closed upon a terribly hard-fought field, and the Army of the Potomac has added another to its list of murderous conflicts. LEE's tactics, so energetically employed at Chancellorsville and Gettysburgh, of throwing his whole army first upon one wing and then upon another, have again been brought to bear, but I rejoice to say that the army of the Potomac has repulsed the tremendous onslaught of the enemy, and stands to-night solidly in the position it assumed this morning. The first attempt was made upon HANCOCK, upon the right, somewhat weakened in numbers by the battle of yesterday; but the iron old Second Corps nobly stood its ground; then the enemy hurled his battalions upon SEDGWICK, and once or twice gained a temporary advantage, but our veterans were nobly rallied, and the rebels repulsed with awful slaughter. About half-past four P. M., LEE made a feint attack upon the whole line, and then suddenly fell, with his whole force, upon SEDGWICK, driving him back temporarily, but the advantage was soon regained, and the rebels hurled back with great loss. Night had now come on, and it is believed at headquarters, at this hour, that LEE has withdrawn from our front. Although the nature of the ground has been of a terrible character, most of it being so thickly wooded as to render movements all but impossible, and to conceal entirely the operations of the enemy, yet he has been signally repulsed in all his attacks, and nothing but the nature of the battle-field has prevented it from being a crushing defeat. The loss on both sides has been very heavy, but at this hour of hasty writing, I cannot even give an estimate.

THURSDAY'S BATTLE.

FULL DETAILS.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8.

The special correspondent of the Rochester Democrat, with the army, has arrived in Washington with the following account of operations up to Friday morning:

GEN. GRANT'S HEADQUARTERS,
GERMANNA FORD, Wednesday, May 4—7 P. M.

The whole Army of the Potomac to-day effected the passage of the Rapidan. Gen. WILSON's cavalry division forded the river at Germanna Ford, and Gen. GREGG's division at Ely's Ford, eight miles below, at daybreak. The few mounted pickets of the enemy that were watching the two points, scampered off before them. Double pontoon bridges were at once thrown across the river, and the infantry that had marched to the Ford during the night commenced crossing over at about 8 A. M. Gen. HANCOCK's corps and the reserve artillery crossed at Ely's Ford, and Gen. WARREN's at Germanna. SEDGWICK's corps followed the latter. The passage of the river continued all day at both points. All the troops are over at this hour. The trains will cross during the night. Gen. HANCOCK is encamped on the Chancellorsville battle-ground. Gen. WARREN is at the old Wilderness Tavern, and Gen. SEDGWICK at the tavern and Germanna Ford. Both Gen. GRANT and Gen. MEADE's headquarters are at this point for the night.

Not a shot was fired during the crossing. Immediately after reaching the south bank, Gen. WILSON's and Gen. GREGG's cavalry pushed forward, the former to Parker's Store, the latter some distance beyond Chancellorsville. They discovered nothing of the enemy but weak parties of cavalry, developing the fact that there was no strong rebel force south of us. About a dozen prisoners were taken by our cavalry, among whom were several couriers. One of the latter carried a dispatch from Gen RHODES to Gen. EWELL, informing him that the Yankees had crossed in force at Germanna and Ely's Fords. There is absolutely nothing known of the movements of the enemy at headquarters to-night. It is supposed, however, that LEE is concentrating, and that we will meet him in force to-morrow. Efforts will be made, at all events, to ascertain his whereabouts. The army will be pushed southwestwardly to the open country beyond the Wilderness, provided developments in regard to the enemy do not necessitate a change of this purpose. The movements to-day were made in fine order, and with creditable precision. There was hardly any straggling, notwithstanding the hard work during the night and day. The troops are full of spirit; the most auspicious weather favors the advance. Gen. BURNSIDE's command, consisting of four (4) divisions, commanded by Gens. POTTER, FERRERO, WILSON and CRITTENDEN, is expected to come up with the army to-morrow afternoon.

GEN. GRANT'S HEADQUARTERS, May 5—8 P. M.

As expected, last night, the army came up with the enemy to-day. A battle has been fought between parts of it and the whole rebel army, but, as at Gettysburgh, the bloody scenes of this day were only a prelude to the bloody work, and it is to be hoped more auspicious results, to-morrow. Reveille was sounded at 3 A. M., and the whole army was again in motion at daylight. According to the order of the day, Gen. HANCOCK's corps was to march upon Chancellorsville, southwestwardly on the Pamunkey road to Grove Church, Gen. WARREN's from Old Wilderness Tavern to Parker's Store, on the Orange Court-house plank road. SEDGWICK's corps was to follow behind WARREN's.

Gen. SHERIDAN was to concentrate the whole cavalry corps at Piney Branch Church, a few miles south of Chancellorsville, and start upon a general hunt after STUART's cavalry, the main body of which was reported to be concentrating for a fight. The different bodies had been in motion but a short time, when, at about 6 o'clock, reports came in from both turnpike and plank-road running almost parallel from this vicinity to Orange Court-house, that the enemy were advancing with infantry and artillery toward us from near Old and New Verdiersville. The evidence accumulating in the course of the next two hours that strong rebel columns were moving upon us from the directions mentioned, Gens. GRANT and MEADE came up from Germanna Ford, and orders were issued to halt the various columns of infantry, concentrate and form them for battle at this point. Commanding ridges running from the northwest to the southeast across both roads over which the enemy were advancing, about half a mile to the west of this point, offered a fine position for the formation of a battle front, and was selected for this purpose. SEDGWICK was ordered to take the right, WARREN the centre, and HANCOCK was expected to come up on the left. WARREN and SEDGWICK got into line about 11 o'clock, and soon after skirmishing was heard on the front. About noon Gen. WARREN was ordered to push GRIFFIN's division forward to the right and left of the turnpike, and ascertain what the enemy were about. BARTLETT's brigade moved up the left, and AYRES' regulars to the right of the road—SWEITZER's following in reserve. After advancing about three-quarters of a mile, they suddenly found themselves confronted by a well-formed and strong rebel position on a thickly wooded ridge. A severe fight ensued. Our two brigades held their ground against evidently greater numbers for nearly an hour, but the enemy succeeded in overlapping AYRES' regular brigade, and forcing it back precipitately. The flank of BARTLETT's brigade being exposed, it was also soon forced back for some distance. Two pieces of the Third Massachusetts Battery had to be left behind in consequence of the killing of nearly all the horses, and fell into the hands of the enemy. SWEITZER's brigade, and WADWORTH's, of ROBINSON's division, were ordered forward, and relieved the two brigades. The enemy soon attacked these, but were held at bay. Brisk musketry and artillery firing were kept up for an hour longer, when the enemy drew off from that part of the line. Our loss in this affair was quite severe—AYRES' and BARTLETT's brigades principally suffering. No definite figures can now be given. But the total will probably not exceed six hundred in killed, wounded and missing.

Among the wounded are Gen. BARTLETT, slightly; Col. HAYES, Eighteenth Massachusetts, slightly; Col. GWIN, One Hundred and Tenth Pennsylvania; Col. GUINEY, Ninth Massachusetts; Col. LOMBARD, Fourth Michigan. We took about three hundred prisoners.

HANCOCK's corps had been ordered to turn off the road he had started out on, and march over a cross-road as rapidly as possible for this point, to complete the formation of the line of battle. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon, after the fight on the centre had closed, a movement by the enemy was discovered, evidently meant to throw a force between HANCOCK and the remainder of the army. GETTY's division of SEDGWICK's corps was ordered at once to stay this dangerous demonstration. HANCOCK's advance, MOTT's division, arrived just in time to form with GETTY's, to the left and right of the plank road leading directly from Chancellorsville to Orange Court-house. Gen. GRANT ordered them to attack the advancing enemy, in order to give the remaining divisions of HANCOCK's time to come up and form. They did so, and became at once hotly engaged in woods so thick that it was almost impossible to advance in line. BIRNEY's division of the Second Corps soon came up, and quickly formed on the right of GETTY. BURLOW's and GIBBON's divisions formed a second line as they came up. The enemy in vast force pressed energetically and repeatedly upon the front, and a most furious musketry fight continued for nearly two hours. The heavy timber and dense undergrowth rendered the use of artillery impossible, and only a few rounds from heavy pieces were fired on either side, but as to violence, the musketry surpassed everything in the history of the Army of the Potomac. Our line steadily held its ground until the whole corps was forward, when nightfall prevented an advance on our part, and put an end to the fight. WADSWORTH's division and a brigade of ROBINSON's division, under command of Gen. ROBINSON, were ordered to take the enemy in front of HANCOCK by the right flank, but darkness also prevented the full execution of this fight. The loss on our left will probably reach one thousand, including Gen. ALEXANDER HAYS, killed; Cols. S. S. HICKS, CARRALL and TYLER among the wounded.

HANCOCK's men behaved most admirably. The Fifth New-York Cavalry, in advance on the road to Parker's Store, was attacked by superior force in the morning and driven back with considerable loss. Gen. SHERIDAN sent a message to Gen. MEADE in the evening, to the effect that he had met part of STUART's cavalry and was driving them in every direction. Gen. LEE made two attempts to cut our army in two, both on the right and left, by getting between the river and WARREN's and SEDGWICK's corps, with only part of BURNSIDE's across on the one side and between HANCOCK's corps and the remainder of the army on the other. That he was foiled in both purposes and that the army has been concentrated, notwithstanding his two well conceived attacks, constitutes a most substantial success for Gen. GRANT. Not quite one-half of the army was engaged to-day. To-night every corps is in proper position, BURNSIDE's being fully up and Gen. GRANT has at his command a force sufficient and will make a general attack upon the enemy at daylight. There was heavy firing on SEDGWICK's part of the line after dark, but it was of short duration. It is understood that it was brought about by an advance on our side to clear our front.

WASHINGTON REPORTS.

Speculations, Rumors, &c.—Everything Looking Bright—The Success of Butler and Sherman.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8.

The National Republican has the following:

We are glad to be able to state that the result of the fighting on Thursday and Friday is all that the most sanguine friends of the Government can desire. The dawn of day on Saturday exhibited no evidence of the presence of the enemy. Gen. GRANT with great promptness took advantage of the fact and ordered a forward movement. It is proper to say here that in consequence of such movement nothing has been heard directly from Gen. GRANT. He has more important duties to perform. It is believed by those who have the best means of knowing, that LEE is hastening to the works of Richmond, not only to save the remnant of his own army, but to rescue, if possible, the rebel capital from falling into the hands of that dreaded chieftain, Gen. BUTLER. There is little doubt that LEE will have to make good time to prevent such a disaster to DAVIS' rebel dominions. There are many things known to the Government, all of a cheerful tendency, which it is not proper to state at this time. For instance, it would not be proper to state what we know about the operations on the Peninsula, up James River, &c.; but at the same time, in general terms, it is not improper for us to state that everything is progressing successfully. We are in possession of information that the rebel authorities at Richmond, seeing the fate which awaits the city, have taken measures to remove everything of value to them from the city. The ten thousand wounded men upon the field mentioned in our last extra to-day, some of which have at this writing probably reached Rappahannock Station, includes the wounded on both sides. The list of killed and wounded have not reached the city yet, and probably will not before to-morrow or next day, as the time of every one is employed in rendering relief to the unfortunates.

Further details are momentarily expected of the two days' battles, but it is doubtful if anything is received from Gen. GRANT until the retreat and pursuit terminate.

It is sufficient to say that all the dispatches from the advancing armies under SHERMAN, HOOKER, SCHOFIELD and WASHBURN are as encouraging as could be asked for.

SECOND REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8.

The Star, in its extra this morning, says:

The only official information from the Army of the Potomac is derived from dispatches of the Medical Director and Chief Quartermaster to their respective Bureaus.

The wounded, numbering from 6,000 to 8,000, have been sent from the battle-field to Rappahannock Station, there to be forwarded to Washington. A portion of them have arrived at Rappahannock.

The Chief Quartermaster has made a requisition for grain for the animals. This imports an advance by Gen. GRANT.

Gen. INGALLS says: "We have fought two days. The enemy are said to be retiring."

There seems to be no doubt that although nothing decisive has yet occurred, the enemy has been foiled in his confident expectation of driving Gen. GRANT back before his operations could be fully developed, and that LEE has been compelled to give way. The tactics of the enemy have uniformly been to strike his heaviest blow at the outset, and to this their success has always been owing. This has now failed.

The casualties reported are Gen. HAYS killed, and Gens. GETTY and GREGG, and Col. HAYES and Gen. OWENS are reported wounded.

Gen. HANCOCK is reported to have received a slight wound, while rallying his men to resist A. P. HILL's onset.

Two of Gen. BURNSIDE's Staff are reported killed, while carrying dispatches.

There seems to be no doubt of the death of Gen. HAYS, of Pittsburgh, Penn. He held the position which bore the brunt of A. P. HILL's attack, and fell at the head of his command, just at the moment that support had been ordered forward to reach him.

THIRD REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8—2 P. M.

Reports received from the front up to 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, say there had been two days' severe fighting on Thursday and Friday, and that it was believed that the enemy were retreating.

Our wounded were being sent to the rear, showing that we had lost no ground in the fighting.

It is believed that our forces were pressing forward.

Nothing further has been heard from Gen. BUTLER.

Reports from Chattanooga, dated at 5 o'clock yesterday (Saturday) afternoon, say that Gen. SHERMAN was then at Tunnel Hill, the enemy at Buzzard Roost Gap and our Gen. MCPHERSON was operating against the enemy's communications with Rome through Vilanan and Resaca.

The Star says: "Were we at liberty to mention facts within our knowledge, we think we could demonstrate that LEE has real occasion to dread the strategy of our military operations, as well as the vigor with which they are pressed. We believe that JEFF. DAVIS finds to-day, in reality, what has sometimes been talked about, that 'it thunders all round.' The line of attack by LEE, in the fighting of Thursday and Friday, nearly at right angles with GRANT's line of advance, and from the direction of Orange Court-house, indicates that LEE made the latter point his base and headquarters. The forced march of a day and night by BURNSIDE, from Manassas, by which he got his troops to GRANT's support on Thursday night, is said to have surpassed his brilliant forced marches in East Tennessee, by which he surprised the enemy there. Probably LEE has by this time had occasion to feel their presence with GRANT."

Gen. WEBB was killed in the battle of Friday.

Our loss was stated at 6,000 to 8,000 killed and wounded.

FOURTH REPORT.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 9—2 A. M.

A dispatch received this evening by a distinguished member of the Cabinet, from Fortress Monroe, states that Gen. BUTLER has succeeded in destroying the railroad between Richmond and Petersburgh.

No wounded from the front had arrived here up to half-past one o'clock this morning.

The Government, up to ten o'clock to-night, had not received any particulars of Friday's engagement. This is the report of those who made special inquiry.

Three thousand of our wounded, whose injuries are slight, are to be cared for where they now are, while the others are to be brought to Washington.

It was feared in Alexandria, to-day, that some injury had been inflicted on the railroad by MOSBY's guerrillas.

The train is not yet in.

THE PENINSULAR MOVEMENT.

Capture of Petersburgh—The City Burned by the Rebels—Gunboat Commodore Jones Blown up by a Torpedo—Handsome Achievements by Colored Cavalry.

FORTRESS MONROE, Friday, May 6—8 P. M.

Our troops, under Major-Gen. BUTLER, are in possession of Petersburgh, Va.

LATER.

NEW-YORK, Sunday, May 8—6 P. M.

By the arrival at this port of the steam transport Western Metropolis, Capt. MILTON, from Fortress Monroe, Capt. MILTON reports that, on leaving, he gained the following information:

"On the 6th inst. our forces, who had landed at City Point, moved on Petersburgh, when the enemy immediately set fire to the place and abandoned it.

On the morning of the same date, the United States gunboat Commodore Jones, while on picket duty in the James River, near Turkey Bend, was blown up by a torpedo, one of the cigar-shaped infernal machines, and several of her officers and men killed, and some forty wounded. The rebel who had charge of the torpedo was shot, and two of his companions made prisoners.

On the 5th inst. the First and Second regiments of Colored Cavalry, under Col. WEST, made a dash across the Chickahominy River, and two companies dismounted and charged into the camp of the Forty-sixth Virginia Cavalry, killing 30 men and capturing 35 horses. The horses were immediately mounted by our troops, who pursued the rebels to within ten miles of Richmond."

Official Dispatch from Gen. Butler to Gen. Grant.

OFF CITY POINT, Va., May 5, 1864.

Lieut.-Gen. Grant, Commanding Armies of the United States, Washington, D. C.:

We have seized Wilson's Wharf Landing. A brigade of WILD's colored troops are there. At Fort Powhatan Landing two regiments of the same brigade have landed. At City Point HINKS' Division, with the remaining troops and battery, have landed. The remainder of both the Eighteenth and Tenth Army Corps are being landed at Bermuda Hundreds, above the Appomattox.

No opposition experienced thus far. The movement was apparently a complete surprise. Both army corps left Yorktown during last night. The monitors are all over the bar at Harrison's Landing and above City Point. The operations of the fleet have been conducted to-day with energy and success. Gens. SMITH and GILLMORE are pushing the landing of the men. Gen. GRAHAM, with the army gunboats, led the advance during the night, capturing the signal station of the rebels.

Col. WEST, with eighteen hundred cavalry, made several demonstrations from Williamsburgh yesterday morning. Gen. KAUTZ left Suffolk this morning with his cavalry, for the service indicated during the conference with the Lieutenant-General.

The New-York, flag-of-truce boat, was found lying at the wharf, with four hundred prisoners, whom she had not time to deliver. She went up yesterday morning.

We are landing troops during the night—a hazardous service in the face of the enemy.

BENJ. F. BUTLER, Maj.-Gen. Comd'g.

A. F. PUFFER, Captain and A. D. C.

OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The Expedition up the James—The Start from Fortress Monroe—The Occupation of Fort Powhatan and Wilson's Wharf—The Successful Landing at City Point—Surprise of the Enemy—Important Cavalry Expedition from Suffolk.

STEAMER GREYHOUND, OFF FORT POWHATAN, JAMES RIVER, Va., Thursday, May 5, 1864.

The movement of the Union army in this direction, which, for weeks past, has been vaguely expected, commenced this morning. The obligation to keep silence respecting the hostile preparations, which, for prudential reasons was imposed, is now removed; and here, under the shadow of the commanding fortification, erected by the rebels in 1862 for the purpose of interrupting MCCLELLAN's water communications after his reverses before the rebel Capital, known as Fort Powhatan, I commence the record of the campaign. Premising that up to this point every circumstance has been auspicious, and that not the slightest symptom of resistance on the part of the enemy to our advance in the direction of Richmond has been encountered, either from guerrillas, torpedoes or any other source, I shall go back a few weeks, and briefly trace from its conception the enterprise which, to the present point, in all its details, has been a wonderful success.

THE PLAN.

To Major-Gen. BUTLER, I am told, is exclusively due whatever credit shall result from the inception and execution of the plan. When, four weeks since, Lieut.-Gen. GRANT, the actual commander of the armies of the United States, visited Fortress Monroe, it was for the purpose of ascertaining the views of Gen. BUTLER respecting an advance upon the rebels by way of the Peninsula, to be carried out in co-operation with the Grand Army of the Potomac. Gen. GRANT had considered the various plans proposed with this object in view, but had committed himself to none, and was inclined, therefore, to listen attentively to what Gen. BUTLER might suggest. The sequel proves that the proposition of Gen. BUTLER fully commended itself to the judgment and acquiescence of the Commanding General, and measures were at once taken to put it in execution.

Briefly, the project was to advance upon Richmond by the James River; get a foothold as near the city as possible, on the south bank of the stream; seriously interrupt the communications of the rebel Capital southward, and eventually compel the evacuation by LEE's army of their strongly-fortified position on the Rapidan, thus forcing the rebels to give GRANT battle, or press rapidly rearward to the walls of their Capital. This plan will be generally admitted to be both bold and comprehensive, while the arrangement of its preliminaries has been marked by the rarest shrewdness and military sagacity.

THE ORGANIZATION.

The first step toward organization was made some weeks since, by the concentration at Yorktown, from the various posts in the Department of North Carolina and Virginia, the great bulk of the Eighteenth Army Corps. To the command of these troops was assigned Maj.-Gen. W. F. SMITH, whose glorious career under GRANT at Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge has won for him the confidence of the army and the gratitude of the country. In addition to these war-worn heroes from the coast of North Carolina and the posts in Virginia, nearly all the brave and gallant fellows of the Tenth Army Corps, (under Maj.-Gen. GILLMORE,) fresh from the bloody field of Olustee and the more remote and scarce less bloody sands of Morris's Island, were sent to Gen. BUTLER to participate in the movement, forming their encampment at Gloucester Point, opposite Yorktown.

That Yorktown and Gloucester Point, both at the mouth of the York River, should have been selected for the rendezvous of these troops, naturally led to the supposition that the advance was intended to be made up the Peninsula by the route which proved so fearfully disastrous to MCCLELLAN. But this show of force was merely a stupendous ruse de guerre, and circumstances indicate that it succeeded admirably in deceiving the rebels. Their journals have constantly spoken of these troops as destined to follow the path of 1862, and that the assurance of their deception might be made doubly sure, a brigade of Union troops was dispatched by Gen. BUTLER even as late as yesterday to White House Landing, where, at sunset, when we last heard from them, they were sedulously engaged in felling timber and constructing a wharf, as if preparing to facilitate the landing of a large army. To aid in this scheme of mystification, all the light-draft steamers were kept until the last moment at Fortress Monroe, whence, early yesterday morning, they were dispatched to the York River, and the work of embarking the troops, whose arrangements for the purpose had been already made, was begun promptly. Soon after the shades of evening closed over the camping-ground, the last tent was struck and the troops were all on board.

Gen. BUTLER's order to his subordinate Generals, made it incumbent for them to repair to Hampton Roads, as quickly as possible after dark, where they were to anchor for the night. At day-break the order commanded an advance of the troops up the James River, convoyed by three army gunboats, under Brig.-Gen GRAHAM, and a naval force, consisting of five monitors and eleven gunboats, under Rear-Admiral LEE.

THE PLAN FOR THE CAVALRY.

The cavalry branch of the expedition is commanded by Brig.-Gen. A. V. KAUTZ, who has just received his stars, but who is pretty well known as the Colonel of an Ohio cavalry regiment, that last year, after a wearying chase, stopped the audacious career of the guerrilla General MORGAN, by a handsome charge upon the immensely larger force of the marauder, as they attempted to cross the Ohio River into Kentucky. KANTZ, with a fine body of several thousand white troopers, left Suffolk, Va., also at daylight yesterday morning. The point at which he aims primarily to strike is Hickford, a town on the Petersburgh, Richmond and Weldon Railroad. A ride of about eighty miles, by the Surrey and Sussex roads, allowing him time to pay his compliments to the people as he passes along, would bring him to Hickford to-morrow evening. The railroad bridge there, which is a strong one, about three hundred feet long, will be destroyed, if possible; and then the dashing horsemen will do other damage to the enemy's means of supply as far as they can find opportunity. Gen. KANTZ has received a roving commission, and if not too hardly pressed by the rebels, he may penetrate as far South as Weldon, N. C., returning when it suits his convenience. We may not hear of him for a month, but meanwhile it is expected that he will make a good record.

Starting up the Peninsula from Williamsburgh, another cavalry force, somewhat smaller, command by Col. WEST, also set out at daybreak. Their object was to create a diversion in our favor by keeping the rebels excited and attacking guerrillas and the garrisons of the outposts. Col. WEST would try to cross the Chickahominy at Bottom's bridge and make his way to the main body on the James. Taking it for granted that the cavalry started at the proper time and are now having a good time and a glorious gallop, I must return to

THE ADVANCE OF THE MAIN FORCE.

As on every occasion when a large piece of machinery is put in operation, there is certain to be more or less friction of the parts, so this complex machine of a gallant and mighty army did not move smoothly according to the programme. The Eighteenth Corps (Gen. SMITH's,) having the advance, was promptly up to time, dawn finding all the steamers used in its transportation steaming by Newport's News into the mouth of the James River. But the steamers of the Tenth (Gen. GILLMORE's) Corps were still quietly at anchor off Fortress Monroe. Here was an unexpected source of detention. Gen. BUTLER had every reason to suppose that the sailing-orders were perfectly understood, and would be implicitly followed by his Corps Commanders. It was easy to perceive that he was both distressed and annoyed at the delay. He had hoped to reach his intended point of debarkation (City Point, fifteen miles below Richmond,) at three o'clock in the afternoon. This he expected to accomplish, even in case that the possession of two points on the way up the river, viz.: Wilson's Wharf and Fort Powhatan, should be contested by the enemy, as it was very likely would be done. There was nothing for it, then, but to learn the cause of this dilatoriness of the Tenth Corps, and to hasten the vessels forward. This was done.

The fleet new steamer Greyhound, the flagboat of the expedition, on board which Gen. BUTLER, with his staff, had come at midnight, went back from Newport's News to Fortress Monroe. Gen. GILLMORE was sent for, and made satisfactory explanations, I believe, to Gen. BUTLER. This accomplished, off we started at 8 o'clock up the river.

The scene in the hazy light of the beautiful Spring morning was picturesque and animated. Crowded steamboats labored heavily through the still water, pontoon trains and lumbering canal barges, to be used in disembarking, were in tow of the swifter transports. The long low lines and wedge-like shapes of those naval nondescripts, the monitors, with their high cylindrical turrets amidships, gave variety to the scene. The swift Greyhound flits among the slow-moving craft and slackens her speed an instant as she comes abreast each vessel, allowing Gen. BUTLER from the hurricane-deck to order them to advance with all the celerity possible. "Give her all the steam you can, Captain," shouts the General, with upraised cap, and as the crowds of blue-coats recognize him they burst out vociferously in cheers. The scene, as we pass up the river, is charming in the extreme. The high wooded banks of the stream present us every variety of delicate foliage with which the Spring delights to clothe the earth in vernal beauty. Occasionally a house is visible over the bluffs, and a man appears, beyond doubt very much amazed at the sudden appearance of so large a fleet of invading Yankees. The trip up the river is unbroken by any sign of war.

Taking the advance, Gen. BUTLER's boat reaches Wilson's Wharf, a point about 35 miles below Richmond. Here a regiment of Gen. WILD's negro brigade have effected a landing, and are busily engaged in making preparations to hold the place. From this point up the river to Fort Powhatan is a clear straight reach of seven miles, which it would never do to leave in command of the enemy, who could fortify the bluffs and play the mischief with our water communications. So Gen. BUTLER takes possession of both these strong positions. The stalwart Africans gaily run up the bluffs, and are soon at work swinging axes with a will, and the giant trees fall with a mournful crash under their sturdy strokes. Soon a wide space of woods on the high banks are cleared away, and rebels approaching from toward Richmond must come within the sweep of our batteries. Bye-the-bye, there can be nothing mentioned, I think, which better shows the perfect

Turf Record.

TROTTING AT THE UNION COURSE.

Saturday is a decidedly unfashionable day to select for a trot on the Island, as the large majority of the patrons of the trotting turf are compelled by their business pursuits to remain in the City to settle up the affairs of the week; still, the knowledge that a play or pay match was to come off on the Union, in which the game and gallant mare Sally Come Up, who had previously shown so much stoutness and bottom, was to reappear in competition with Rattling Maid, another mare, concerning whose merits the highest anticipations were held, induced many to hurry up their City business, and the result was a far larger attendance than could have otherwise been expected.

The parties of either mare were equally confident, and some quite spirited betting took place prior to the start. Sally having the call with firm supporters at 2 to 1; those odds being readily taken by the friends of The Maid.

First Heat.—No time was wasted in scoring, both mares getting off handsomely at the first attempt, and leading off side by side, (Sally having the inside place.) In this order they took the upper turn, but they had scarcely passed it, (the Maid leading,) when she went off her feet losing a couple of lengths which gave Sally the lead, which she continued past the quarter pole in 42½. Taking the back stretch The Maid closed up the gap in good style, and the pair had their wheels locked at the half mile, which was passed in 1:22½. They continued side by side to past the three-quarters and the turn into the home stretch, trotting beautifully together; but on reaching the crawgate The Maid was carried off her feet, leaving Sally to come home an easy winner by three lengths, in 2:44½.

Second Heat.—Four to one was now offered on Sally, and readily taken by the friends of The Maid. Another good start was effected at the first attempt—both trotting squarely side by side, round the upper turn to the quarter pole in 40½. No visible change of position took place down the back stretch to the half-mile, which was accomplished in 1:20¾. Nearing the three-quarters, The Maid went up to Sally's head, and a dashing spurt ensued—the result appearing doubtful, and the interest becoming intensified as the two the home stretch closely lapped together; but, unfortunately, at the distance The Maid got into trouble, and almost immediately afterward broke, giving Sally the lead, with which she went on easily to the end, winning the heat by as many lengths as she chose in 2:41¾.

Third Heat.—This heat was trotted in exactly the same style as its predecessor, the two mares going side by side all the way, until inside the distance, where The Maid broke up again, and Sally came home handily, the winner of the heat and match, in 2:43¾.

UNION COURSE, L. I.—Trotting.—Saturday, May 7.—Match for $200, play or pay; mile heats; best three in five, in harness.

NEW JERSEY.

THE BUILDING OF IRON-CLADS IN JERSEY CITY.—The construction of iron-clads at SECOR & Co.'s yard in Jersey City is progressing with all possible dispatch, and in a short time three more of these formidable machines of war will be in readiness to operate against the enemy. About 200 men are employed putting the finishing strokes on the Manhattan, which has been launched some time. The turret is up, the gun carriages are being placed in position, and the guns will probably be mounted by Saturday, and, in all probability, this vessel will be put in commission during next week. The Mahopac and Mahonga are still on the stocks, but will undoubtedly be launched some time within three weeks. The Mahonga is 255 feet in length, 25 feet in breadth and 14 feet in depth. The Mahopac is 235 feet long, 42 feet beam and 14 feet deep, and attached to her is a ram 12 feet in length. The Mahonga, which is intended for river and harbor service, will be supplied with eight broadside guns and two rifled swivels. She is furnished with four water-light bulkheads, worked by valves from the deck. These compartments can readily be emptied or filled, by which means the vessel can be raised or lowered in the water.

MONDAY, May 9—A. M.

The Trade of the week past was generally on a reduced scale, as compared with the previous active fortnight. The Import entries fell off nearly one-half, and the Customs down to $1,112,000. The exports of Produce and of Specie were to a fair average amount. The turn of the general markets, both in Foreign and Domestic articles, was downward. In staple Foreign merchandise the Importers, thus far, have not been able to cover the increased rates of duty. There is a much decreased speculation on the Stock Exchange, in consequence of which, and the absence of mercantile activity, the rates and supply of Money are easier for borrowers. The Stock Commission firms are indisposed to new engagements of an extensive speculative nature. Most of them having made money on the recent heavy business on the Street, are content to await the result of the pending military movements before encouraging fresh orders. The number of outside speculators is also much reduced, many of them leaving the Street with less means than they brought into it a few months ago. Railway prices have further declined from 3 to 5 ₩ cent., and in some instances the figures are now much lower than last Summer after Gettysburgh and Vicksburgh, and the fall of Gold below 130 ₩ cent. In the Gold and Exchange markets there was less excitement than the week or two before, the movement of Gen. GRANT gradually bringing down the rates from 5 to 7 ₩ cent. The remittances by the Import trade continue on a moderate scale, while the collections of May interest for foreign account are nearly or quite balanced by fresh investments in United States Stocks.

The impending military events in Virginia were the absorbing subjects of interest on the street Saturday. The actual business on the Stock Exchange was not large. The Government holders were firm. The price of Gold subject to repeated ups and downs. The first sales and also the closing sales at 3 o'clock were about 173 per cent. The intermediate fluctuations were as low as 171¼ and as high as 173¾ per cent. In the Evening, 172 ₩ cent. Only one session of the Stock Board was held. The Railways were steadier than on Friday and improved after the adjournment. At 3 o'clock the following rates were quoted on the street, the market being unsettled:

And we take pleasure in announcing one work of the very highest merit and of great historic value, the celebrated picture by JOHN VANDERLYN of the finest work of the artist, and long acknowledged the most beautiful as it is the most perfect nude figure ever painted by an American, and is well known by the best line engraving ever done in this country, by the distinguished artist, A. B. DURAND.
The very high standing of the house of Messrs. GOUPIL, their reputation for taste, and the many advantages they possess in the selection of their various works in the art capitals of Europe, have always given their importations advantages over all other parties. At this time, too, their collection offers particular inducements to collectors, as the new tariff and constantly increasing high rates of exchange must nearly altogether preclude further importations.
Full particulars, with catalogues, will shortly be ready.
The collection will be on exhibition at the Dusseldorf Gallery, No. 548 Broadway, on THURSDAY, May 5, continuing open day and evening until the nights of sale.

Curtis, Esq., in his memoir of Mr. Downing, says of this place: "I have often passed a week there without wishing to go outside the gate, and entirely forgot there was any town near by." It contains six acres, highly cultivated in lawn and garden, with fountain, gate-house, trees, ornamental and fruit, in every variety; mansion spacious, with tower, verandahs, gas, water, &c.; carriage, coachman's and ice houses; barns and henneries, graperies and green-house filled with every variety. Buildings in collegiate Gothic style, and walks graveled. It is a first-class residence, and highly praised by the experienced eye of Miss Frederika Bremer, in her letter to Mr. Downing's friend. Parties wishing to purchase the premises divided can do so, and have a residence that can be occupied the entire year. The drives in its vicinity are excellent and picturesque, and amid scenes of great historical incident. The country seat and its surroundings have been made classic by eminent American and foreign criticism and revolutionary incidents.

The neighborhood is unexceptionable, and the premises very accessible. The Fishkill station on the Hudson River Railroad is about fifteen minutes' drive from the premises, and fine boats ply regularly between Newburgh and New-York.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The news from the armies, this morning, is very gratifying. Success seems realized and promised from all quarters. Gen. Grant has repulsed Lee in all his attacks, with tremendous loss; Gen. Butler is successful on the Peninsula, and has destroyed the railroad between Richmond and Petersburgh; Gen. Sherman in the west has occupied Tunnel Hill, outflanked the rebel position at Buzzard's Roost, and Joe Johnston is reported falling back on Atlanta. But for further particulars we refer the reader to the full reports we publish elsewhere.

The steamship Morning Star, from New-Orleans April 30, arrived at this port yesterday morning. The news is not important. Gen. Banks' army was at Alexandria, and it was believed he would remain there. The rebel accounts of the battles in Louisiana are very glowing. They claim the capture of four thousand prisoners and nineteen pieces of artillery, but admit a heavy loss themselves.

The capture of Gen. Steele's supply train, with its escort, in Arkansas, is confirmed. It consisted of two hundred and forty wagons, and was captured by the rebels while returning to Pine Bluff, together with the escort, comprising the Twenty-sixth Iowa Regiment, the Seventy-seventh Ohio Regiment, and the Forty-third Indiana Regiment, with four pieces of artillery.

Forrest has at last found a foe who doesn't plead weakness. The advance of Gen. Sturgis' cavalry, 700 strong, with two pieces of artillery, encountered a band of Forrest's men, 1,000 strong, near Bolivar, Tennessee, on the south side of the Hatchie River, on Monday last. A severe fight took place, lasting two hours, and resulting in the rebels being driven from their intrenchments, when they retreated across the river, through Bolivar, destroying the bridge behind him. Gen. Sturgis is in hot pursuit.

A great female riot occurred in Savannah on the 17th ult. The women collected in a body, with arms, and marched the streets in a procession, demanding bread or blood. They seized food wherever it could be found. The soldiers were called out, and after a brief conflict the ringleaders were put in jail.

Port Royal papers of the 5th state that Florida, Georgia and South Carolina are nearly depleted of rebel troops, who have been sent north to join Lee's army.

The Journal de Gand, in its issue of April 18 gives some additional particulars of the accident which happened to the Kearsage at Ostend. It states that the pilot who was taking her into the harbor discovered two small boats in his track, and as they did not get out of his way he ran the vessel upon the pier in trying to avoid running over them. The Kearsage happened to be under a low head of steam, or the damage done would have been irreparable. As it was, Capt. Winslow was so incensed at the carelessness or incapacity of the pilot, that he was about shooting him on the spot. At last accounts every effort was making to lighten the Kearsage, but it was not certain that she could be got off.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Chicago Journal publishes an extract from a private letter, dated Nashville, May 1, which says: "This was the day on which the armies at Huntsville and Chattanooga were expected to move. It is reported this morning, however, that the movement has, for some reason, been deferred. There is probably to be a new order in the programme. It has been found out to a certainty that many of the rebel troops in Johnston's army have gone to Richmond. The discovery of this fact may have something to do with the revocation of the order for a forward movement."

The Newark Advertiser acknowledges the receipt of letters from the Thirty-fifth New-Jersey Regiment, dated Decatur, Ala., April 28, which states that some of Forrest's men were just outside their picket lines, and occasionally make a dash upon our pickets, but are driven back every time. Generally three or four of them are wounded, and occasionally some killed. On the 27th they dashed on one post of six men, and were handsomely driven off. They killed a private and wounded a Captain. Only two of the Thirty-fifth have been hurt; one was killed and the other wounded. The regiment has recently received new uniforms, and is regarded as the best drilled of any at that post.

Breadstuffs were very quiet on Saturday; prices of Flour declined 10c.@15c. ₱ bbl., and Wheat, nominally, 3c.@5c. ₱ bushel. Provisions were less active, and buyers had any existing advantage. Cotton was heavy and drooping. Groceries were in limited request. Whisky was in brisk speculative demand at advanced rates. Wool attracted less attention, owing to the high prices claimed by holders. Tallow, Tobacco, Oils and Naval Stores were lightly dealt in. Freights were very dull, with 597 vessels of all classes in port.

There was a further fall in Gold on Saturday to 171¼, recovering to 172 ₱ cent. Money easy. The Railway Stocks partially better. Government Stocks steady.

The Great Campaign.

Not in the history of modern scientific war has there been a series of operations at once so colossal and so complex, as those of which our country has been the theatre, and Lieut.-Gen. Grant the director, in the first week of the month of May, 1864. The Americans have been accused of confounding mere bigness with grandeur; but, though magnitude is a striking characteristic of present events, we think that their conception and inception at least, merit the honor of being also termed grand.

The largeness of the campaign—for all the movements are essentially a unit—is seen in the simultaneous advance of the two main armies from lines as far distant as the Rapidan in Eastern Virginia, and the Tennessee, near the border of Upper Georgia. The complexity of each of these movements appears from the fact that both the one in Virginia, and the other in Georgia may be said to be threefold. In Virginia, there was the chief advance of Meade upon Lee's army; there were the coöperating movements of Butler's force upon Richmond by the James, and that of Sigel by the Shenandoah Valley. In Georgia, there seems to have been the chief advance of Sherman upon Tunnel Hill and Dalton, pressing for Atlanta; there were also the coöperating movement of Gen. McPherson upon the communications with Rome, and that of Cox in the direction of Bull's Gap, East Tennessee. We do not imagine that these great movements can be brought to their consummation in one day, nor in one week, nor in one or two battles. The respective objective points, Richmond and Atlanta, are not, it is true, very far distant from our starting points at Culpepper and Chattanooga; but hardly any two regions could be conceived more difficult to operate over, if the ground be contested, as in this case it has been and will be by large and determined armies.

We are enabled to present to the public today pretty full, and, we believe, accurate accounts of last week's operations in Virginia. By Wednesday morning, as our readers already know, Grant's chief army was south of the Rapidan, but during that day there was no fighting. The same day, however, Lee seems to have moved down promptly from his position at Orange Court-house, and next morning offered battle a few miles west of the old Chancellorsville field. Lee adopted his usual policy of assailing our lines with great impetuosity, striking first at one point, then at another, and attempting to break our lines. The battle was renewed on Friday, and it seems that on that day nearly the whole force of both armies was engaged and fought furiously till nightfall. It is believed that Lee's army then retreated. Only a small amount of skirmishing occurred on Saturday. We shall know presently whether he retreated toward Richmond or toward Gordonsville.

From all we can learn or judge, we think a highly favorable view of the battle and its results may be taken.

Butler's column on the James has also achieved advantages in effecting a landing at City Point, though it is not yet confirmed that Petersburgh is in our possession.

From Georgia we have news that Gen. Jo. Johnston's army is retreating upon Atlanta, followed by the army of Sherman. It will probably be a day or two before full particulars are received from this advance.

The movements are grand, the signs auspicious, and we trust in Heaven and in our brave armies for a consummated Victory.

Steam Communication with Brazil.

Although the Brazil Steamship Aid Bill passed the Post-office Committee in the Senate on Thursday, there is an apparent hesitancy, natural enough perhaps, to take decisive action on the measure at once. The reasons attributed to the opponents of the measure for delaying action are, we think, of doubtful validity. The objectors, it is said, consider that the claims of steamship lines to run from New-York to European ports, should have precedence in any scheme of subsidies. So, perhaps, in ordinary cases and in ordinary times they ought to have. But let it first be granted that the trade of Brazil warrants the establishment of such an enterprise, and there are more and better reasons for early action than the opposition can give for delay. In the good years before the war we took from $22,000,000 to $25,000,000 worth of Brazilian products annually, and sent to Brazil sometimes between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 a year—running almost neck and neck with Great Britain in the race of competition for the trade. That trade was, we may say, the short growth of thirty odd years. Within that period it had grown in the matter of imports almost forty-fold. Nearly ten years ago the merchants of Hamburg thought the trade of sufficient importance to warrant the establishment of postal communication by steam with Rio. And, under a similar stimulus, the commerce of Great Britain with the Empire, has more than doubled in the last seven years.

The value of the trade then, no one disputes. And something may be said on the point of precedence, by reflecting: First, that this is a coöperative enterprise in which the United States are not required to take all the risks, the proposed subsidy being made contingent on the corresponding action of Brazil. Second, the amount proposed is small compared with any subsidy that could be of practical avail for a first-class European line—a most important consideration looking to the question of ways and means. Third, a jointly-subsidized line, such as this, could have the protection of a neutral flag, so long as piracy finds its present scope and recompense on the high seas. Fourth, the good-will and coöperation of Brazil are likely to be more readily secured, at a time when her consular difficulties with England have destroyed, or materially interrupted, the entente cordiale, than had such difficulties not arisen.

The committee, indeed, must find better reasons for delaying action than they have yet presented. We grant that $150,000 a year is not a trifle. But an economy, better directed in its application, might make good the amount of the subsidy in a single week's expenses in the military and naval departments of the Government. Viewed in the light of the general and current outlay in nearly every department of the National Administration, the Brazilian subsidy is but a bagatelle. And although these are not the times to disregard the accumulation of even petty accounts, there is surely ample reason to justify an investment which promises such certain, if not immediate returns.

Grounds of Hope for the Future.

It is often remarked that the best measure of the real meaning of events is to be found in the stock market. The state of the Government funds, for instance, after the announcement of a victory, is a far truer indication of the public judgment than the official bulletins or the articles of journalists. To a certain degree this is true. The market for securities and exchange is the best possible indication of the public feeling, but not of the wisest public judgment. Capital, in seeking investments, or speculation in trading in them, must of necessity be influenced by fancy and feeling, for these two imponderable elements enter into the very estimates of their value. The stock market is always, and must be, sensitive to every breath of public feeling. There is no place in New-York where the airy sprites of caprice and imagination have such unlimited sway as in Wall and William streets. In such localities, a feeling propagates itself with amazing rapidity, and whether it be fear or hope, the results are constantly far disproportioned to realities. In the long run, of course, the market settles down on a solid estimate of things, but at any particular period its tone may be widely astray from a rational judgment.

A year ago from the coming July, though amid the devastations of the mob, gold sunk in New-York to about 125, under the news from Vicksburgh, Port Hudson and Gettysburgh. In material resources and strategical position the rebels were stronger during that month, even after those defeats, than they are now. They held possession of the fertile valleys and the important positions of East Tennessee. Chattanooga and the mountain regions adjacent—the strongest points of the Southern mountain border—were still occupied by their forces. The twenty or twenty-five thousand veterans killed and wounded and made prisoners, in the battles of Chickamauga and Chattanooga, were still in their armies. Longstreet's powerful corps had not lost its thousands. All the drain of another year in men, money, provisions, forage and animals, had not been felt.

We on the other hand were weaker then than now. Our armies numbered less. There was less unity of command. There was no great concentration for a forward movement—the one condition of military success in our campaigns. Everything which promises success is more at hand with us now, than in July, 1863. Our armies were never so large, nor under such good commanders and officers. The apparent plan of a coöperative movement in overwhelming force against the vital points of the Confederacy, promises the most assured success. Our people were never more united. And yet gold in this month of May is close upon 180.

We know that the rebels are putting forth their last strength. Even the Richmond Enquirer admits that this must be the final campaign. Their power is now strained to its utmost tension. They cannot raise more men or procure more supplies. The worst which we could have to fear, are drawn battles, and for the rebels, drawn battles will be almost as fatal as defeats. They have no men with whom to replace the fallen. Each great battle leaves them in a fearfully weakened condition, while Grant's reserve can at once fill his broken ranks. We have now reached the time in which the last strain is put upon the powers of each party. The immense resources and the great armies of the United States are now collected in Virginia and Georgia, and on the other side, the power of the rebels, drained from the very life-blood of the Confederacy. It is fortunate that our vital powers are not to be exhausted in petty struggles, but that now grand battles on a scale worthy of the immense issue, are to be fought out at once between the two powers of barbarism and civilization on this continent. To our mind there cannot be a doubt of the final issue.

In view of the awful and momentous struggle, we do, indeed, in common with our whole people, look to Providence with deep solemnity, and we trust first of all to the Power which has thus far guided this Republic through all storms and dangers. No moralist or student of history could possibly believe that a State founded on human Slavery, and marking its advent by such scenes as the brutality of Libby Prison or the butchery of Fort Pillow, could succeed. Looking, moreover, at the usual human conditions of success, at the spirit and bravery of our soldiers, the skill of the Generals, our arms and resources, the apparent plans evolving, and the condition of the other side, we could not, as a mere financial speculator, doubt the issue of this Summer. Whether terminating in brilliant victories or not, we believe profoundly that this present season will prove disastrous to the rebellion, and that henceforth our sun will begin to rise.

The apparent depression of the market, we believe, is mainly an affair of the feeling rather than the judgment, and due principally to the minor disasters which have followed our useless expeditions during the Spring. The coming July will, as we hope, show a renewal of confidence corresponding to that of the last, and based on even sounder conditions.

The Louisiana Campaign.

The news from Louisiana continues to get worse and worse. Gen. Banks has given up all thoughts of a forward movement, and seems to be just now occupied mainly in devising means to get back to the Mississippi. He has lost one-third of his army, twenty or thirty guns, perhaps twice as much baggage as the force which defeated him has had in its possession for the last year, and $1,000,000 in greenbacks. Nor is this all; it appears by a letter from which we published extracts yesterday, that there are but three feet of water on the shoals at Alexandria, while a large portion of our gunboats and transports are still above. Several of the gunboats have been disabled, and guerrillas swarm along both banks of the Red River from Grand Ecore to Fort de Russey. This is a painful close to an expedition which was to extinguish the rebellion in the whole region west of the Mississippi, and drive Kirby Smith, Dick Taylor and Magruder into the "illimitable perspective." And it must not be forgotten that while this is going on upon the Red River, the enemy is reappearing along the Mississippi; Vicksburgh and Memphis are both threatened, and the navigation is being again endangered at all points.

This is the second expedition that Gen. Banks has made into the interior of Louisiana. He went up through the same region last year, though not so far. The rebel army retreated before him as usual, and he came back to New-Orleans in due course, having laid waste a large tract of country, brought off a great many contrabands, administered the oath of allegiance to a great many people, and left small posts in a great many small places. The rebels followed him on his retreat, also as usual, destroyed whatever stores or provisions the unfortunate inhabitants had still left, hanged and maltreated those who had been foolish enough to take the oath, and "gobbled up" his posts, capturing Brashear City, where upward of $2,000,000 worth of Government stores were judiciously left under a small guard. In fact we have not the slightest doubt that it was what he took from Gen. Banks during that expedition that has enabled Smith to keep the field ever since.

Gen. Grant is, we presume, too much occupied with the great problem which he has before him in Virginia to be able to bestow much thought or attention on what is going on in Louisiana. We are satisfied that if this were not the case, he would ere now have put a stop to the wild waste of blood and treasure attendant on these "raids" and pursuits. He knows better than any one else, that if the Confederacy falls on this side of the Mississippi, as we hope and believe, it will fall under his blows, Western Louisiana and Texas will come into the Union again just as surely as a ripe apple falls to the ground. Does any sane person really believe that if the Cis-Mississippian region were again under the sway of the United States Government, Kirby Smith and Magruder, with their 25,000 or 30,000 men, would set up an independent Republic on the Indian border, and bid us defiance? And if not, does not common sense and common humanity, to say nothing of strategy, demand that we should stop chasing them up and down—stop seducing unfortunate people into swearing allegiance to us, when we can make them no return in permanent protection—stop collecting contrabands, whom we can neither feed, clothe, doctor, or teach, and attend to our legitimate duties nearer home.

The business of the General in command at New-Orleans is, in our opinion, to keep possession of the city, to keep the river open up as far as Memphis, and to extend protection to the colonies which we have established along its banks, and then to forward any troops which can be spared from these duties to keep Forrest out of Kentucky, or else to reinforce Sherman. This programme ought to have been rigidly adhered to ever since Vicksburgh fell. If it had we should have saved ten or twelve thousand men and many millions' worth of stores, and have avoided several humiliating disasters. Surely we have had enough "raids" and "expeditions." Surely their folly has been often enough demonstrated—so often that the repetition of them now falls little short of wickedness.

Responsibility of Telegraph Companies.—A verdict was rendered in our Court of Common Pleas, on Saturday, which establishes, so far as that court is concerned, a principle of marked importance in regard to the liability of Telegraph Companies for the accuracy of their dispatches. It seems that a firm telegraphed to their agents here to sell 500 shares of Southern Michigan stock at the Morning Board, and buy 500 Hudson in the afternoon. The word "Hudson" was omitted in the dispatch, and 500 Southern Michigan were bought. The result was a heavy loss to the parties who had given the order and this loss was directly due to the mistake in the transmission of the dispatch. The result was a verdict in favor of the claimants, thus establishing the principle that Telegraphic Companies are responsible, like other common carriers, for the accuracy with which they transmit the messages intrusted to them. These companies have hitherto claimed exemption from this responsibility, but we see no reason in justice, as we are very glad to find there is none in law, for according it. A blunder like the one which led to this suit may involve very serious losses, and there should certainly be responsibility for it somewhere, not only as a matter of justice, but to prevent their occurrence. If Telegraph Companies find that their errors involve no penalty, they will employ operators of inferior capacity on the ground of economy, and, indeed, the extent to which this is now done is one of the most serious defects of the Telegraph system. If this decision is sustained by the higher courts it will improve that system as well as protect the public.

AMUSEMENTS.

The announcements at the various places of amusement to-night are as follows: At Wallack's Theatre the play of the "Wife," with Mr. Lester Wallack as Julian St. Pierre, and Miss Jane Coombs as Mariana; at the Winter Garden, Mr. Edwin Booth resumes the rôle that first made him famous, namely —Richelieu, in the play of that name; at the Olympic Mr. Thomas Baker, the musical conductor, takes his benefit, and announces, for the first time here, the two-act drama called the "Chimney Corner," and the farce of "Somebody Else;" at Niblo's Garden, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams continue their engagement for six nights longer, playing in a variety of their light and laughable pieces. "An Hour in Seville" and "Ireland as it Was" are announced for to-night; at Barnum's Museum, the serio-comic drama of "Belphegor" will be played this afternoon and evening, and Mlle. Ernestein, the pretty and talented danseuse from the Academy of Music, will make her first appearance at that establishment. The illuminated fountain, the giants, dwarfs, &c., still remain.

In the way of magic, we have a full allowance, but not more than the public seems to relish. Robert Heller, who is a wit as well as a wizard, a musician as well as a magician, continues to attract fashionable and delighted audiences to his pleasant little temple, opposite Niblo's. His entertainments are thoroughly admirable. Lower down town, at the new Broadway Theatre, Simmons, the conjuror, offers an entirely new programme. He announces too, that on Wednesday next, he will cut off his own head, an operation which will, it is expected, be peculiarly gratifying to the public. At Cooper Institute, the Davenport Brothers continue to give their remarkable seances to densely crowded audiences.

Mr. Max Maretzek, will leave shortly for Europe, to complete the necessary arrangements and engagements for the fall season at the Academy of Music. Several important changes will be made in the company; notably a new tragic prima donna will have to be found to take the place of Madame Medori, who, it is whispered by friends, and muttered by managers, has surrendered to the common enemy of the lyric stage—matrimony. The lady was, we believe, married last week to Mr. Blankman, the lawyer.

The success of Mr. Fry's new opera of "Notre Dame of Paris," has been unequivocal; we have not read a dissentient word on the subject of its merits. There is no doubt whatever that it is the best American opera in existence; and this—without carrying the matter further—is sufficient to entitle it to the highest consideration of Americans. The question now arises—what is to become of it? Must it be shelved after the brief season of the Sanitary Fair in Philadelphia; or will it be fortunate enough to find its way to the New-York stage, and there win the larger applause and more generous fame that the metropolis holds in its gift and is always eager to bestow? It is difficult to perceive how the more pleasant of these prospects can be accomplished. There are notorious influences that will prevent its production at the Italian opera, under a regular management, and where else can such a work be given? Although it does not need the extraordinary resources that were lavished upon it in Philadelphia, it must, at least, have a good orchestra, a good chorus, and a decent quantity of appropriate scenery. There is at present but one house where these requisites can be obtained, and for a special venture that house—the Academy—can only be had in the worst of seasons. Under these circumstances, is it not possible to organize an American Opera Company on the basis of the National Opera Company of England; to establish, in fact, a joint stock company for the production of home-made operas, and the education of native singers? The stock of the London enterprise was taken up in a few days, and the same result would, we are sure, attend a similar effort here. With the resources and influence which such an organization would readily command, Mr. Fry's opera—which marks a most important epoch in our art history—could be reproduced, and other works of perhaps equal merit brought to light. Either with or without a new theatre, there would, we are confident, be a profitable return to the stockholders. Something should, at all events, be done to prevent our retrogressing from the point to which Mr. Fry's "Notre Dame of Paris" has brought us.

Mr. Grau's Western season is drawing to a close, and will end on the 24th, when the troupe will return to New-York. It is stated that Mr. Grau will, if possible, give a few performances here, playing "Faust," the "Huguenots" and "Dinorah"—three very acceptable operas which will be sure to draw.

FROM GEN. HOOKER'S COMMAND.

The Campaign—A Reconnoissance—The Movement of the Army—Confidence.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Lookout Valley, Thursday, April 28, 1864.

The time has come for the campaign to begin. It is just a year since the sturdy boys "of ours" (the Twenty-first New-Jersey) and the other regiments assigned, flung away their knapsacks, and, with one hurried thought of home, and years compressed in a moment, rushed on through shot and shell till we stood on the impossible heights of Fredericksburgh. The first look around on Marye's Hill showed us the shaft of an imposing monument. Had he remembered then who slept beneath, our joy of victory would have doubled and carried us more proudly through the perils of that masterly detour of Sedgwick, which, though turned by superior orders into a retreat, damaged and harassed the enemy more like an advance. The wound that here concluded my campaigning in the hospital gave me time to study localities, and the history of this monument brought back the thought of its strangely untoward fortune, tinged with that idea of sacrilege once the sight of a ghastly suicide upon his father's grave fashioned ineffaceably.

Its inauguration was marred by a murderous assault on the President. On the 6th of May, 1833, the steamer Cygnet was bearing Andrew Jackson, on his way from the Capitol to lay its corner-stone. The Cabinet and many guests were on board, and the beauty of the day, and the music of peace charmed the company. While he sat over his newspaper smoking in the cabin, a dismissed Lieutenant of the navy suddenly attacked him, striking the General in the face with his gloved hand, but was instantly seized by the bystanders. In the melée the table behind which the President was sitting was broken down. The old hero only remarked: "No villain has ever escaped me before, and he would not had it not been for the table." This was the type, and it remained for Preston Brooks to furnish the anti-type. It seemed as if the sacred errand of the President was about to be defeated, but the boat sailed on and he accomplished his duty, as was his wont, forgetful of himself.

Scarce a generation had passed when the sons of those he addressed met there in a hand-to-hand struggle for life; and now the children of those who aided to lay the corner-stone of her tomb are banded rebels, striving to pull down the pillars of the State her counsels helped to build. To-day it may witness other slaughter. At least it stands to mark the spot where, for the first time, the rebel strongholds in Virginia were assaulted and carried by storm. I do not wonder the traitors fought that day as men doomed to defeat, and turned with averted eyes toward the tomb

Where, tearless, while those deeds of death were done,
With hand upraised until the fight had won,
Stood Mary, mother of our Washington.

I cry you pardon for this episode. However, it is a soldier's privilege to "fight his battles o'er again," and from the present look of things we will soon have new ones enough on our hands, whose realities will crowd out all such reminiscences of the old. The excitement of the hour presages immediate movements. At such a time who will not pity the poor fellows in the hospital? The sense of their sad imprisoned state, and the tramp of the troops receding further and further, adds depth to their sorrow. They fancy what is to be, and, perchance, while the spirit is wasted with suffering, a fleeting glance is permitted behind the veil of the future.

How different with us! The glimpse of the stirring events of the opening campaign, of the march and the bivouac, rouses the most sluggish; and the most common-place natures, connected with the great events about to occur, assume the very tint of heroism. The period of inaction is over, and we await the order to advance, with all the moving realities of war before and around us. There are the bronzed faces, the worn uniforms and the tattered flags, while yonder the cavalry, with their arms glancing in the morning sun, make the heart beat high, like our boyish dreams of the tournament. In the shifting scenes of such a life there is no time for sadder thoughts, and if they come, the stronger thought of duty comes following close thereafter.

I presume the next week will see us on the move, and we go down into the valley of decision with a never-failing confidence in the resources of our great leader. We feel sure that he has used the long calm that has preceded the storm, to prepare those bold conceptions that shall shine out on more than one battle-field. In the language of Wellington, with whom he may well be compared, we know that he does not believe that "small bodies can be successfully opposed to large; nor that whole armies can be driven by a handful of light infantry and dragoons." Beside, whatever befide us, it gives us spirit and high hope to remember that we are part of the great machine one master mind is moving; and that while we are fighting the battles of the Republic amid the mountains of Georgia, at the same day and hour, it may be, the Army of the Potomac, of whom we once were, will be dealing their terrible blows on the citadel of the rebellion.

It behooves me now to stop telling what it is hoped to do, and let my next tell you what has been done.

HAWKSTAFF.

Death of Gen. A. S. Webb.

The report of Thursday's battle includes news that Gen. Alexander S. Webb, commanding a brigade of the Second Division of the Second Army Corps, was among the killed. This is a serious loss to the army and the country. The service had few more capable officers, and none more promising. Gen. Webb graduated at West Point, we believe, in 1857, nearly at the head of his class. He was soon afterward ordered to Florida, and, after serving in that State for several months, was transferred to West Point, and with great credit filled the chair of an instructor. At the outbreak of the rebellion, he entered into active service at once, and fought as an artillery officer at the first battle of Manassas. Soon afterward, he had command of a volunteer infantry regiment, and in June, 1862, became attached to the staff of Gen. Fitz-John Porter, in the capacity of Inspector of the Fifth Army Corps, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. In April, 1863, he was appointed Brigadier-General, on the recommendation of Gen. Hooker, and was assigned to the command of a brigade in the Second Army Corps. At the battle of Gettysburgh he displayed preëminent gallantry. Not a single Brigadier contributed so much, it is safe to say, to that great victory as young Webb. He was in the very thickest of the fight, handled his men with extraordinary ability and coolness, and escaped death by a miracle, only to meet it among the first in the bloody work of the present year.

Gen. Webb was not more than twenty-six years of age. He was a member of the Episcopal Church, and was a noble specimen of a Christian gentleman. In the highest degree generous, genial, courteous, truthful, brave, modest, of stainless honor, ever true to duty, he displayed the finest type of manhood. No nobler youth, no truer soldier, has fallen in this war.

Gen. Webb was the youngest son of Gen. James Watson Webb, now Minister to Brazil. Soon after graduating, he married Miss Anna Renaud, of this City, and leaves, we believe, two or three children. The bereaved family will have the keenest public sympathy.

The Matter of Parade Ground.

The following resolution, which has passed the Board of Aldermen, will probably come up before the Councilmen to-day:

Report of Joint Committee, to whom was referred the selection of a public parade-ground for the drills and parades of the First Division, in favor of adopting resolutions: First, that the large plot of ground in the Central Park, lying south of the principal skating pond, be appropriated as a parade-ground for the use of the First Division of the National Guard; second, that the Commissioners of the Central Park be requested to remove such trees and shrubs as are now on said plot, except along the walks, and to make such improvements in the grades as will facilitate its use by the troops; and third, that the Street Commissioner cause Madison-square to be prepared for a regimental parade-ground, by removing all trees and other obstructions, except those near the fences, and causing the whole to be laid down in grass.

When the resolution was before the Aldermen, the legality of any control over the Central Park was questioned by some of the members, and the board, as a whole, seemed to have no definite opinion on the subject. It was stated, in answer to objections to the resolution, that the Major-General would "take the responsibility." Now, this is not exactly the way for our City legislators to act; it betrays doubt of the legality of their action, and is a loose, unbecoming way of doing business. On no individual's shoulders should they shuffle the responsibility of any of their acts; if they know they are right, then let them go ahead; if they apprehend they're wrong, then they should not risk the chances of an error, which might work public annoyance, expense and injury. If the resolution be reached by the Councilmen to-day, it is to be hoped that it will be well and intelligently considered and decided on their own responsibility. Harlem Flats, just beyond the Park, Hamilton-square, and Manhattan-square have been proposed for the parade-ground; over Manhattan-square the Commissioners have control and it is understood that they are willing to assign it, but, just now, they have not the funds which its preparation would require; Hamilton-square is under control of the Common Council. Certainly it would seem as though some place could be satisfactorily selected. The military are not sticklers for locality to an extent which would raise objections to any within reasonable distance. What they want, what they are entitled to and what they should and must have, is a parade-ground. This surely can be secured them without the dangerous precedent of overriding any rules or law, and without the assumption of an acknowledged doubtful authority by the Common Council.

Collision.

The steamer Arago, at New-York, reports that on Friday, May 6, at 8:30 P. M., the propeller Fenny, with 240 soldiers on board, was run into by the propeller Cumbria, and sunk, in Hampton Roads. It is supposed all on board were saved, but two men were badly injured.

Fatal Accident on the New-York and Erie Railroad.—Bartholomew Clinton, a child 4½ years of age, was accidentally run over some days since at Augusta Bridge, by a train of the New-York and Erie Road, and was brought from that place to the New-York Hospital, where he died yesterday. Coroner Collin held an inquest in the case, and upon the evidence it was shown that the occurrence was purely accidental. A verdict to that effect was rendered by the jury.

Drowning Casualty.—A man, supposed to be A. O. Branch, was drowned yesterday by falling or jumping into the water at the foot of Beach-street. It appears that deceased was discovered on the pier about 1 o'clock in the morning by the night watchman, who warned him to be careful or he would fall overboard. Shortly afterward he heard a splash in the water, and running to the end of the pier saw deceased and made every exertion to get him out. The man drowned, however, before he could be saved. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

Accident.—Richard Best, a boy aged 16 years, was run over by a Fort Hamilton car, on Sunday, and had one of his feet crushed. He was taken to his residence, No. 30 Bond-st., by Officer Morrell, of the Forty-eighth Precinct Police.

Rebel Reports of the Battles in Louisiana—Official Dispatch from Kirby Smith to Gen. Magruder.

KIRBY SMITH TO MAGRUDER.

From the Huntsville (Texas) Telegraph, April 16.

SHREVEPORT, April 12, 1864.

To Maj.-Gen. Magruder:

TAYLOR attacked and routed the Thirteenth Army Corps three miles from Mansfield, on the evening of the 8th, and drove back in confusion the Nineteenth Army Corps, which came to its support. MOUTON'S, GREEN'S and WALKER'S divisions only were engaged.

A general engagement took place on the evening of the 9th, near Pleasant Hill, the enemy having been reinforced from the Nineteenth Army Corps.

The fighting was severe, the enemy holding his position.

The enemy retreated under cover of the night.

The cavalry pursued next day, capturing many prisoners and nineteen pieces of artillery.

Full three thousand prisoners in all captured.

Our loss is heavy; Gen. MOUTON is killed; Gen. WALKER is wounded.

E. KIRBY SMITH,
Lieutenant-General Commanding.

SHREVEPORT, Tuesday, April 12.

Intelligence by last courier, from a point twenty miles below Pleasant Hill, report the enemy still retreating, our cavalry following.

Many more prisoners have been captured—at least four thousand in all.

The fleet of transports and gunboats that were five miles below have gone down the river.

They are not out of our reach yet, and may come to grief yet.

Nothing later from Arkansas. H. P.

From the Galveston News.

SHREVEPORT, Tuesday, April 12.

DEAR NEWS: Just returned from the battle-field. My company of minute men dismissed; no longer required.

Enemy totally routed. About five thousand prisoners captured—one thousand killed and wounded. Four hundred wagons and two hundred ambulances captured.

Our loss, 1,000 killed and wounded. Will give by letter-to-morrow full particulars. M. E.

Some time since we received information that the entire Second Louisiana Cavalry, Col. VINCENT, had been gobbled up by the enemy. Later intelligence contradicted the rumor. The regiment was only scattered, and for several days small squads came in, until all returned, with the exception of fifty-five men. Many of the missing are known to be prisoners in the hands of the enemy.

A few days since, twenty-two of this regiment made their appearance on Red River, near Shaggy Point, below Alexandria, and scared up four Yankees, who were at a farm-house some distance from the river, pressing wagons to haul cotton to a steamer near by. These were captured, and compelled to pilot our party to the steamer. This being refused, she was fired into. The dose being repeated, eight of the Yankees were killed and wounded. The boat then surrendered. After taking off such plunder as they desired, our men burned the boat, together with the dead upon it.

There is considerable rejoicing, suspense and activity among the citizens here to-day. We have gained a great victory below, and to-day the fighting is to be renewed with several thousand fresh troops, all veterans. All feel quite certain that we will be able to hold our own, yet prudence requires that we should be prepared for anything that may happen, for the full strength of the enemy is not known, and every one seems to be in readiness to stay or leave, according to the fortunes of war. Retreating is a new business to many here, and it is in some instances ludicrous to witness the manner in which some of the denizens are shaping their ends.

The following letter from an officer below to his friend here is just received:

HEADQUARTERS DISTRICT WESTERN LOUISIANA, }
Friday, April 8, 1864. }

DEAR JIM—I am all O K—just this minute come off the field. We have captured two thousand prisoners, immense wagon train, and several batteries, among them the celebrated Nims battery. I regret to inform you that among the killed are Gen. MOUTON, Cols. BEARD and ARMANT, Maj. CANFIELD, Capt. FIELDS; Lieut.-Col. CLACK badly wounded. Our loss and the enemy's heavy. Those mentioned are the only ones that have come under my eye. The old Louisiana Brigade, MOUTON'S, drew the first blood, and has suffered severely. Gen. TAYLOR'S saddle cloth was cut through by a spent minnie ball during the action. I suppose we will have it again to-morrow.

Maj. R. H. DYER, Maj. L. S. LEMAN and Capt. J. T. SCOTT leave to-morrow for Houston. H. P.

Gen. Banks at Alexandria—No Intention of Retreating from that Place—Protection to the Gunboats.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, May 8.

At the latest dates Gen. BANKS was at Alexandria, and no intimation has been given that he designed to leave that position. Positive orders from Gen. GRANT required Gen. BANKS to afford protection to the gunboats in Red River. His force is strong enough, under competent command, to bid defiance to any force the rebels can bring against him. Arrangements for supplies will be made with energy and celerity by Major-Gen. CANBY, who has gone forward to the field under special instructions.

THE FOURTH NATIONAL BANK.

Statement of Facts Regarding the Vote of a Portion of the Shareholders of the Fourth National Bank of New-York, Absolving George Opdyke, Esq., and Others, from their Promise not to be Re-elected Directors of the Bank During the Present Year, by one of the Tellers.

At an adjourned meeting of the shareholders, held May 5, 1864, Mr. CLEVELAND, a partner of Mr. OPDYKE, offered a resolution, prefaced by alleged reasons therefor, absolving Mr. OPDYKE and others, from their promise made to the shareholders, that they would not be reelected as directors of the bank during the present year. This resolution led to a feeling discussion, and was opposed by Messrs. CHITTENDEN and GEORGE D. PHELPS, and others, as impolitic and untrue in its statements. A shareholder, owning one hundred shares, paid for and not hypothecated, moved an amendment striking out all after the word resolved, in the resolution, and substituting a resolution to the effect that the whole matter involved be referred to the present directors, with power to act as they think the interest of the bank requires, and free from the advice or control of any committee appointed heretofore.

Mr. DAVID DUDLEY FIELD, a paid and partisan attorney, and not a stockholder, moved to lay the resolution on the table. A vote by shares was taken, about 19,000 shares voting No. The Chairman, T. G. CHURCHILL, Esq., declared the motion lost. Mr. OPDYKE, then moved the previous question, which motion was assented to by the meeting. The Chairman, at the dictation of Mr. FIELD, declared the previous question to be the passage of the original resolution. The shareholder moving the amendment claimed it was on the adoption of the amendment of the original resolution. This claim was disallowed by the Chairman, whereupon the shareholder appealed from the decision of the Chair. The Chairman, under the same dictation, refused to entertain an appeal. A portion of the meeting then proceeded to vote. Mr. JENKINS, a partner of Mr. OPDYKE'S son, voted by proxy for Mr. R. D. LATHROP. For the resolution, 750 votes. One of the tellers desired to see his authority. JENKINS refused to show it, saying the meeting had it; neither the chairman, secretary or the tellers had any knowledge of it. It was not produced, and against the protest of the teller, he was allowed to vote 750 shares. The ledger of the bank shows Mr. LATHROP to be credited with 350 shares. Upon what principle he could vote either by proxy or otherwise, on 750 shares, the teller was and is unable to see. The vote was received, the pursuit of knowledge on the part of the tellers was baffled, and thereafter anybody offering to vote was allowed to vote for any number of shares he pleased to name.

The resolution received 18,678 votes. The whole number of votes is 50,000. Of this 50,000, 28,000 had previously requested Mr. OPDYKE and others to resign, and the shareholders had unanimously thanked him for so doing. N. A. COWDREY,
One of the Tellers.

I have heard the foregoing card read. It states the facts correctly. HENRY D. TOWNSEND,
One of the three Tellers.

NEW-YORK, May 7, 1864.

SERIOUS STABBING AFFRAY BETWEEN WAITERS.—Yesterday afternoon a quarrel occurred between two waiters at the St. Nicholas Hotel, named THOMAS O'KEEFE and JOHN O'BRIEN. During the affray O'KEEFE drew a knife from his pocket, and stabbed O'BRIEN twice in the left side, immediately below the ribs. The wounds inflicted are considered of a dangerous nature. Officer EDWARD BARDALET, a policeman detailed at the St. Nicholas Hotel, promptly arrested O'KEEFE, and conveyed him to the station-house, and thence to the Jefferson Market Police Court. The officer making the arrest made an affidavit before Justice DOWD, in which he stated that the wounded man had been conveyed to his residence in a dying condition, and was therefore unable to appear in Court. Coroner WILDEY was notified, and will take the ante-mortem examination. In the meantime O'KEEFE has been committed to prison to await the result of the injuries inflicted by him. The prisoner is about 30 years of age and an Irishman by birth.

PRAYERS FOR THE ARMY.—An especial prayer-meeting was held, yesterday afternoon, at the Hedding M. E. Church, Jersey City, (Rev. Mr. DAY,) to invoke the divine blessing upon our army and navy in the contest now taking place.

DROWNED.—A man dressed in dark clothing was picked up at the foot of Pierrepont-street, yesterday. The remains were taken to the Lead house, where an inquest will be held to-day.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE—A NOBLE ACT—DR. ROWS.—When we hear of any extraordinary restoration to health or a very skillful operation, we feel as though no praise is too lavish to bestow on the physician effecting it, but when with it is coupled a noble act of charity, words fail to speak in terms sufficiently commendatory. In the City of Brooklyn, at No. 171 Jay-street, live two sisters, one of whom is a widow, the other single. Not being blessed with a plethora of this world's goods, but, on the contrary, less than usually falls to the share of individuals in general, they were solely dependent on their hard earnings for their daily support. This was all very good until ill health, caused from catarrh, overtook the elder, compelling her many days to remain at home from work. Physicians in vain were sought, all trying, but none effecting any good. Soon that most loathsome and insidious disease showed that it had also laid its ruthless hand on the younger sister. As a natural consequence, her constitution began to break down, and now came the time when she also was compelled to cease from work many days. In the meantime the elder sister had grown worse, the disease having settled on her lungs. Like her elder sister, the younger, whose name is Miss CLARK, tried every one and everything in vain. So reduced had her constitution become that many weeks she would not be able to work more than one day during the week. When we consider the state in which the other sister's health was, and that they had no friends or relations to help them, their position could have been anything but enviable. Acquaintances felt confident that neither of them would be very long in this world, it seeming to every one that they must soon die. Physicians had given them up as hopeless.

Miss CLARK having heard of the extraordinary cures performed by Dr. ROWS, who was then living in Brooklyn, called on him, but with a faint heart, knowing that her means were such as to be able to pay but a small fee.

After hearing her position, and finding that she could be cured, Dr. ROWS, with characteristic generosity, accepted her as a gratuitous patient. Finding she was being so much benefited, she asked the Doctor to visit her sister, who was then confined to her bed, which he cheerfully did. He found her case, however, had gone too far to be entirely cured, and could only be helped. The sequel can be told in a few words. Miss CLARK is entirely cured of catarrh, and her health restored, so much so that she has not missed a day at work, rain or shine, for the last four months, while her sister has been so much benefited as to be able to get to work again. As we mentioned in our last issue, Dr. ROWS has moved to New-York, where he can be found at his residence, No. 16 West Fourteenth-street, eight doors west of Fifth-avenue. It has always been a matter of surprise to us that a man of Dr. ROWS's skill and reputation should have resided in Brooklyn, New-York the metropolis of the country, is the place for such a man, and there is no place in the Union that needs a skilful and scientific practitioner in diseases of the eye, ear, throat, and catarrh, more. Dr. ROWS, it must be remembered, has not just taken up this specialty as a money-making affair, as some have, and possessing no medical knowledge whatever, but, on the contrary, is a regularly educated physician, and has devoted much time and labor to attain the success and reputation he now enjoys.—N. Y. Dispatch.

Brown's Bronchial Troches.—This Universal Remedy for Coughs, Colds and Bronchial Affections now stands the first in public favor and confidence; this result has been acquired by a test of thirteen years. The Ladies and Economy.

The ladies, fond of frequent change, and tired of grand display,
Have racked their brains for something new to pass the time away;
Economy's the household word—retrench, but don't expend,
And turn each garment upside down, and fit, and make and mend.
We see the folly (hear them say) of dressing rich and gay,
While war is desolating homes and taking life away—
While speculators still grow rich and brokers count their gain—
And so we'll try economy, and in the end we'll reign.

Dear ladies, true economy is always just and right,
But then, one need not, all at once, turn nun or Quaker quite,
And vote down dress, the greatest help that ever lent its aid
To render perfect all the charms of matron, wife or maid.
Take our advice, and patronise the places where you will find
Beauty, utility, and grace, with cheapness, all combined.
Not Broadway stores, where rents are high, and where they charge high prices,
But those that can afford to meet your wants in this, our crisis.

There's ROBERTS, he's a merchant prince, and not unknown to fame,
And all his clerks are gentlemen who well deserve the name;
Now, if you need a RICH SILK CLOAK, or dress, or Summer Shawl,
And wish to try economy, just give our friend a call;
Those splendid silks, he sells so cheap, were bought some time ago,
Before the sudden rise in silks, that vexed the ladies so;
And that is why his store all day is thronged with patrons fair,
Who know they get their money's worth, and hence they purchase there.

Ladies in want of CLOAKS, SHAWLS, SILKS, and ALPACCAS, will find a most superb and extensive stock at the old prices; the goods were all purchased in anticipation of an advance, and the only benefit desired is an increase in the sales.

U. S. 10-40 BONDS.

These Bonds are issued under the Act of Congress of March 8, 1864, which provides that all Bonds issued under this act shall be EXEMPT FROM TAXATION by or under any State or municipal authority Subscriptions to these Bonds are received in United States notes or notes of National Banks. They are TO BE REDEEMED IN COIN, at the pleasure of the Government, at any period not less than ten nor more than forty years from their date, and until their redemption, FIVE PER CENT. INTEREST WILL BE PAID IN COIN, on Bonds of not over one hundred dollars annually, and on all other Bonds semi-annually. The interest is payable on the first days of March and September in each year.

Subscribers will receive either Registered or Coupon Bonds, as they may prefer. Registered Bonds are recorded on the books of the U. S. Treasurer, and can be transferred only on the owner's order. Coupon Bonds are payable to bearer, and are more convenient for commercial uses.

Subscribers to this loan will have the option of having their Bonds draw interest from March 1, by paying the accrued interest in coin—(or in United States notes, or the notes of National Banks, adding fifty per cent. for premium,) or receive them drawing interest from the date of subscription and deposit. As these Bonds are their value is increased from one to three per cent. per annum, according to the rate of tax levies in various parts of the country.

At the present rate of premium on gold they pay OVER EIGHT PER CENT. INTEREST in currency, and are of equal convenience as a permanent or temporary investment.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as the various descriptions of U. S. Bonds. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties or stock companies or separate communities only is pledged for payment, while for the debts of the United States the whole property of the country is holden to secure the payment of both principal and interest in coin.

These Bonds may be subscribed for in sums from $50 up to any magnitude, on the same terms, and are thus made equally available to the smallest lender and the largest capitalist. They can be converted into money at any moment, and the holder will have the benefit of the interest.

It may be useful to state in this connection that the total Funded Debt of the United States on which interest is payable in gold, on the 3d day of March, 1864, was $768,965,000. The interest on this debt for the coming fiscal year will be $45,837,126, while the customs revenue in gold for the current fiscal year, ending June 30, 1864, has been so far at the rate of over $100,000,000 per annum.

It will be seen that even the present gold revenues of the Government are largely in excess of the wants of the Treasury for the payment of gold interest, while the recent increase of the tariff will doubtless raise the annual receipts from customs on the same amount of importations, to $150,000,000 per annum.

Instructions to the National Banks acting as loan agents were not issued from the United States Treasury until March 26, but in the first three weeks of April the subscriptions averaged more than TEN MILLIONS A WEEK.

THE CASE OF HUTCHINGS, THE "LIGHTNING CALCULATOR."

There was published in these columns a few days since the remarkable cure of Hutchings, the "Lightning Calculator," so well known to the public during the many years he exhibited his wonderful arithmetical powers at Barnum's Museum, by the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, Dr. Von Eisenberg, of this City. Hutchings is represented to have been at the point of death, and but for the timely interference of the Doctor, would now be resting in his grave. This is a remarkable case, and worthy of the attention of persons similarly afflicted.

We think it is but just to Doctor Von Eisenberg to call public attention to this case. There are hundreds in the community suffering from catarrh, who, like the "Lightning Calculator," if not actually praying for death, are ready to accept of anything that promises to relieve them from their distresses. To such we would say, trifle not with inexperienced men, but consult, without unnecessary delay, Dr. Von Eisenberg, who, at least, has the honesty to assure his patients whether it is within his power to make them whole or not.

EARS TO THE DEAF.

Every man, and especially every woman, believes in his or her physician. There are philosophical minds which hold to an abstract faith in Allopathy, or Homeopathy, or Hydropathy, or some other form of scientific cure; but with the world at large the belief is not in the system, but in the doctor. Especially is this true as regards aurists and oculists. The patient who has recovered his sight or his hearing is sure that the blessing could have been restored to him by no other practitioner than that particular one by whom his eyes or ears were opened. Dr. Von Eisenberg is among our best-known aurists. He has not lent us ears as a brother practitioner has eyes, and in whose skill, therefore, we believe above all others. But we hear of him from those who esteem him not merely as a surgeon, but as a benefactor. A recent case has been related to us, for the truthfulness of which we can vouch, though we can name no names. The patient was a lady who had been deaf from infancy, as a consequence of some of the ailments to which children are liable. Latterly the disease had taken an acute form, and the patient was subject to intense suffering. The deafness was rapidly becoming complete, and the general health breaking down under the physical exhaustion attendant upon constant pain. Ordinary remedies and ordinary advice were useless, and Dr. Von Eisenberg was called in. We need not repeat his diagnosis, for that would be only a list of hard names to the general reader. But he detected at sight the seat of disease, first in one portion of the organism, then in another, and with manipulation as skillful as his insight was accurate, he removed the causes, and she who, from infancy, had heard with difficulty, and latterly hardly at all, was restored first to perfect hearing and then to perfect health. Dr. Von Eisenberg's advertisement reminds us of this case, which we thus briefly relate, though not at his solicitation. Let him that hath not ears, hear.

SIGHT RESTORED.

CONCERNING EYES AND OCULISTS.

Of the five senses, that which we call seeing is the most important and most valued. In proportion as this sense fails us, we are reduced to helplessness. If entirely destitute of sight, how slow would be our progress in knowledge, and how limited our sphere of action and usefulness. Endowed with it, the universe becomes a new creation, clothed with beauty and diversified by that infinite variety which never fails to attract the mind and heart.

For several months past this has been a practical subject to us. An inflamed condition of the eyelids communicating itself to the pupil, rendered the discharge of daily duties not only painful, but dangerous. Attributing it to the effect of a cold, we endured it through the Spring, with the hope that with the return of warm weather it would entirely disappear. But in this we were doomed to disappointment. Summer returned, but not our wonted sight. What might have been the result, either of further neglect or of incompetent treatment, we cannot say.

Stating our case to a friend, he assured us that a similar one in his own family had recently been treated with entire success by Dr. Von Eisenberg, of this City. Satisfying ourselves by more particular inquiries that the doctor is no empiric, but a scientific oculist and aurist, we concluded to seek the benefits of his treatment, which we have now reason to acknowledge is very great. Though but a few weeks under his care, the appearance of our eyes has totally changed. The pupil is now full and clear, and the lids are entirely free from inflammation. The doctor says that the optic nerve has been weakened and the retina assumed a chronic inflammatory state, affecting more or less all the other tissues, and threatening, if neglected, to end in Amaurosis. Opthalmitis, is the term we believe, which oculists apply to eyes affected as were ours. Having obtained the much desired relief, we take great pleasure in acknowledging our indebtedness to the talent of Dr. Von Eisenberg, and of calling to it the attention of others who may be suffering from a similar or even worse condition of their eyes. It is said that Providence provides an antidote for every bane. It is

CHICKERING & SONS
MANUFACTURERS OF GRAND, SQUARE, AND UPRIGHT PIANO-FORTES, No. 652 BROADWAY.—The superiority of these instruments has of late been amply demonstrated by the voluntary testimony of the foremost artists of the day, who claim for them excellencies of tone and workmanship hitherto unobtained by any other makers.

Mr. GOTTSCHALK'S constant use of the NEW SCALE CHICKERING GRAND PIANO-FORTES has severely tested their musical qualities, and resulted in establishing the justice of the very flattering estimation in which they are held.

See their letter in my last circular. STEINWAY & SONS'
GOLD MEDAL GRAND AND SQUARE PIANOS are now considered the best in Europe as well as this country, having received the first Prize Medal at the World's Exhibition in London, 1862.

The principal reason why the Steinway Pianos are superior to all others, is, that the firm is composed of five practical pianoforte makers, (father and four sons,) who invent all their own improvements, and under whose personal supervision every part of the instrument is manufactured. THE PENINSULAR MOVEMENT.

surprise of this movement to the rebels, than the fact that, according to their own admission, they have a strong force at Charles City Court-house, six miles inland from Wilson's Wharf, engaged in collecting negroes together for work on the Richmond fortifications. It is strange if this force was aware of our approach that they did not come up and give us a few shots from a field battery. But no welcome of this left-handed sort greeted us. It is quite likely that our negroes may repair vi et armis to the Charles City rendezous, and so reverse the kind of work their brethren have been assembled to perform on the strongholds of Richmond. The boat is just now leaving Powhatan, where a strong sable garrison has been landed, having little to do in the way of securing their position, but mount the ordnance in the works which the rebels two years ago so laboriously constructed.

The bell rings for the boat to move off for City Point. This place to us is of the first strategic importance, but the indications now are that we shall peacefully occupy it. I must, therefore, stop this hurried writing and go with the other passengers on deck to watch with anxiety the approach of our fleet to its proposed destination.

OCCUPATION OF CITY POINT.

There is a splendid chance for exultation here, and we are all devoutly thankful. City Point has become ours without a struggle. The Union forces are securely planted in a splendidly advantageous position, within fifteen miles of the rebel capital. Our troops are landing as rapidly as possible. The negro soldiers, always in the advance, to-day are streaming up the steep bluffs like ants toward an ant-hill. It is now three o'clock, and before nightfall the greater part of this immense army will have disemburked. Our line will stretch across this narrow strip of land, the left resting upon the James R ver, and then passing over the little River A potmatiox, the prolongation of the line will reach to the James again, holding that almost insular position called the township of Bermuda Hundred. Intrenched here, with both flanks of the army protected by gunboats, we can bid defiance to LEE's coherts, if GRANT's sharp pressing drive them down upon us. The position is considered admirable for seriously threatening Richmond. LEE's army is now between two fires, and should our cavalry raid seriously impair his communications south, starvation will be added to his other troubles. Before we left Fortress Monroe a dispatch from the War Department was received by Gen. BUTLER, announcing GRANT's safe passage of the Rapidan. We suppose that LEE ere this has given him battle or has hastened to the Richmond defences. In either case he must be at this time in a peculiarly unpleasant position. His army certainly was never in such an ugly place before. We are very thankful and joyous here at the perfect ease with which the entire plan of this expedition has been carried out.

THE SCENE AT CITY POINT.

The Greyhound having been delayed quite a while at Fort Powhatan, some of the transports went by and arrived at City Point just before her. I forgot to mention that three army gunboats, under command of Brig.-Gen. GRAHAM, led the advance the entire distance up the river, keeping a few miles ahead of the naval vessels. As we in the Greyhound came in view of the commanding bluffs of the Point, we discovered that the gallant GRAHAM had passed the place unmolested. The naval vessels, however, with excessive caution, had come to a dead stop at least two miles below. This seeming temerity of Admiral LEE was tacitly chided by Gen. BUTLER's unarmed transports. They steamed gallantly past and up to the landing at the Point. As I before mentioned, HINCK's Division of negroes was the first to land, and the Greyhound came up just in time to see the first of the disembarkment.

For a few moments there was considerable anxiety felt as to the rece tion we should get. A rebel flag flaunted from a staff on the hill-top just above the landing, and to the right in a tower were rebel signal officers busily engaged in telegraphing. Capt. SEURGIS and Ensign HARRIS, of GRAHAM's Marine Brigade, sent some well-directed shots in the line of the signal-tower, and the communication was suddenly abbreviated. A few rebels ran rushed toward the flagstaff to lower their banner, but some of the negroes, anticipating their intention, and being desirous of having the satisfaction of lowering the flag themselves, fired a few shots which sent the rebels flying. One rebel came down the hill with a white handkerchief which he waved industriously and was respected. A white shirted negro on horseback galloped briskly round the beach and joined his comrades on the Lincoln gunboats. The flag-of-truce steamer City of New-York, which left Fortress Monroe, yesterday, was near the landing, with the large emblem of her peaceful mission flying. With her our fleet had no communication, and every care was taken that the rebels should have no shadow of a chance to accuse us of violating its sacred character by commencing hostilities under its operation.' Major MULFORD, the officer in command of the truce, stood up stolcably and imperturbably, with folded hands, giving no sign of knowing his comrades in the fleet, and passing no hint to them of possible danger from the shore.

THE NAVAL FORCES.

Following are the names of the vessels of Admiral LEE's squadron, which accompanied the army up the river: The Malvern, (flagship,) the monitors Tecumseh, Canonicus, Saugus, Onondaga and Atlanta—the sight of the last must be tantalizing to the enemy—the double-enders Eutah, Mackinaw and Oceola, and Commodore Morris, Hunchback, Commodore Jones, Dawn, Delaware, Putnam and Shawshee.

OUR HILTON HEAD CORRESPONDENCE

Capture of a Rebel Scouting Party—Rebel Troops from Florida going to Virginia.

HILTON HEAD, S. C., Monday, April 25, 1864.

On Friday night last, our pickets on the creek that runs through the marsh on the western side of Morris Island, succeeded in capturing two boats containing sixteen rebels, who had come down from Charleston on a scouting expedition. The capture was made by a party of the Fifty-fourth Massachusetts (colored) Regiment; Capt. HENESSEY, of the Fifty-second Pennsylvania, acting as officer of the picket line at the time.

A few nights ago two boats containing rebels, were observed making headway toward Seabrook Island. Col. HOWELL, Commandant of the Hilton Head District, happened to be at Seabrook when the boats were discovered, and, as his wont, immediately gave his personal attention to an effort to capture them. The rebels, for some reason, backed their oars before coming within shooting distance. But Col. HOWELL, unwilling to lose a chance of bagging his game, gave orders to have the picket-boats shove off and make chase, himself jumping into the foremost boat. The conformation of the creek is such that our men had to row in a circuitous direction, making the distance double that over which the rebels rowed, which circumstance enabled the enemy to escape capture. He was obliged to row, however, with a desperation seldom witnessed.

Two deserters from Savannah have given us rebel papers of a late date. They contain nothing of importance, save a significant intimation that the troops in that section of the country are moving toward Virginia. I learn from other sources that all the details and detachments around Charleston and Savannah have been called in, and the regiments, excepting a few detained for garrison duty, have been transported North. The brigades which have been stationed in Florida passed through Savannah last week on their way to Virginia.

Messrs. GILSON and RIDDELL, the popular proprietors of the Port Royal House, allowed their colored employes to indulge in a grand fête on the night of the 23d. The employes invited their friends to share the entertainment, which included a ball and a bounteous repast—all at the expense of the firm.

A steamer from Jacksonville arrived this morning. Everything is dull and quiet in that district.

AMERICAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.—The Society held regular meetings on the 14th and 28th ult. The Secretary read letters from Gov. SEYMOUR, of New-York, and from the Governors of Maine, New-Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut and West Virginia, inclosing seals of their respective States, with interesting descriptions of same, for which the thanks of the Society were tendered to their Excellencies. Specimens of the cumbrous seals of the English Patent Office, in the time of GEORGE IV., were exhibited, and the Secretary was requested to prepare a paper on the subject of seals, to be read at some future meeting. A member on behalf of Mrs. GIBBS, exhibited a number of interesting coins, which had been sent to the Metropolitan Fair, but as yet remained unsold. They comprised gold, silver and copper, from Japan; "Etagam," "Neboos," etc., the former an uncouth alloy of silver, resembling a sinker, and some German coins, sent by Mr. MURPHY, the United States Consul-General at Frankfort. Among these latter is a very curious and beautiful gold coin, weighing two grains, and scarcely more than an eighth of an inch in diameter, having on one side the "Agnus Dei," and on the other the State Arms. Mr. MURPHY says it is very old, and probably the smallest gold coin in the world. It is very perfect, seems unknown to collectors, and is thought to be of great rarity. These, together with some gold of CHARLES I., will be put up for sale at the earliest opportunity. The Curator announced several valuable donations to the library and cabinet. The report of the Special Committee recommending a revision of the Constitution was adopted. Communications from the New-Haven Society and others were read, several members elected, and the society adjourned to the 12th inst.
